Latest macro data points from Europe indicates that while growth in Eurozone and France still remains steady, German economy is showing signs of stress. France's Q4CY22 GDP surprised positively and rose by 0.1% (est.: 0%) owing to lower energy imports and sustained business investment. Consumption and exports acted as a drag. In Eurozone, Q4CY22 GDP was up by 0.1% versus estimated (-) 0.1% decline. On the other hand, Germany's retail sales fell (-) 5.3% versus est.: +0.2%, due to elevated inflation levels and uncertain economic environment. On the domestic front while markets await Union Budget presentation, global investors will also track Fed's policy decision later today.

- Global indices ended mixed ahead of the key rate decisions and commentary on future guidance by Central Banks. Investors monitored surprise dip in German retail sales and fall in US consumer confidence. Hang Seng (1%) dropped the most followed by both Nikkei and Shanghai Comp. Sensex ended in green. Gains in auto, power and cap good stocks drove it higher. It is also trading higher today in line with other Asian stocks.
