Food providing desired comfort to CPI

SUMMARYINDIA ECONOMICS: CPI

CPI got the sigh of relief in Nov'25 as well, broadly led by food. There is however some sequential build-up in food inflation led by vegetables. But this is not much of a concern as arrival statistics (UPAJ data) remain in favour. The harvesting months also have a seasonal downward impact on prices. On core inflation, excluding gold, inflation remained broadly contained. In fact, GST pass through is visible in majority of the items of household goods and services. Going forward, this is likely to keep a lid from any upside pressure emanating from a buoyant consumption demand in the current quarter. Our in-house BoB ECI is running at -2.8% in Dec'25 (first 11-days) and we expect CPI to settle at 0.4% in Q3, slightly lower than RBI's projection of 0.6%.

Food continued to support CPI

CPI continued to be below the lower band of RBI's target: CPI inflation reading came in at 0.7% in Nov'25 compared to 5.5% in Nov'24, on YoY basis (BoB est.: 0.9%). The below 2% headline print is despite slightly unfavourable base for the month. For the 3rd month in a row, CPI is running below 2%. This is led by food driven deflation at -3.9% in Nov'25, albeit at a slower pace compared to Oct'25. Among major items, sharp deflation is seen for vegetables (-22.2% in Nov'25) and pulses (-15.9%). This is led by better production statistics. Notably, 5 out of 10 broad items of food are still tracking below 4% inflation. For oils and fat, inflation is still elevated at 7.9% in Nov'25.

The sequential picture of food inflation showed some build up especially for vegetables. Even some usual seasonal push in prices were observed for Eggs. On a seasonally adjusted basis as well, consumer food price index has inched up by 0.5%, MoM, same as in the unadjusted series, signifying no significant seasonality in prices. Going forward, the outlook for food inflation does not seem to be much of a worry. For vegetables (Tomato, Onion and Potato), we have witnessed slight momentum in prices in Dec'25 with Tomato trajectory reversing its previous three months decline (+5.5% increase, YoY-first 11 days of Dec'25). However, on a cumulative basis, TOP is falling by -24.8% in Dec'25 (first 11-days), which will continue to drag down headline CPI print. The mandi arrival statistics (with Apr-Nov cumulative TOP arrivals going up by 22% compared to decline of -13.5% seen in the same period of previous year) of these items have also been comfortable, speaking of no immediate risk as Q4 coincides with the harvesting months, which generally goes with higher arrivals.
