We hosted 10 corporates at our five-day virtual conference with investors from 26 February to 1 March, aimed at unlocking insights in the capital goods, power and durables sectors. Participants comprised LT, KECI, AIAE, NTPC, TPWR (Not Rated), ADANI (Not Rated), POLYCAB, KEII, SYRMA and KAYNES (Not Rated). We present key conference highlights in this report.

Capex cycle remains robust: In the capital goods space, corporates such as LT and KECI expect a temporary lull in activities for tendering and at the ground level due to the upcoming general elections in Apr'24, but do not see the slowdown extending beyond 3-4 months. The outlook on domestic capex remains strong for FY25. Similarly, the key Middle East market, where a large oil company has talked of lowering future outlay, is also expected to see continued infrastructure spends. The quality of the order book is improving and all companies believe margins will expand next year as the mix changes.

Interest in thermal capacity addition rekindled: Power companies NTPC, TPWR and ADANI fielded questions on coal-based capacity additions and the scaling up of brownfield thermal capex, reflecting reviving investor interest in thermal power. While renewable energy remains in focus, we observed equal attentiveness toward new thermal projects given the above-expected peak power demand seen in FY24 to date.

Cables & wires segment continues to grow in durables space...: In the consumer durables space, the cables & wires segment continues to perform well on the back of two factors – (i) the B2B segment is witnessing strong growth due to demand arising out of the infrastructure capex cycle, and (ii) the B2C segment is benefitting from real estate demand. POLYCAB and KEII expect these trends to continue in FY25.

...while higher outsourcing is benefitting EMS: Electronics manufacturing services (EMS) companies such as SYRMA and KAYNES are key beneficiaries of the boom in electronics outsourcing, which is expected to continue in the medium term, with players indicating growth visibility till FY26-FY27.
